New Device Approved To Detect Melanoma.

Printed from https://www.cancerquest.org/newsroom/2011/11/new-device-approved-detect-melanoma on 11/21/2026

A new imaging device (MelaFind®) from Mela Sciences (www.melasciences.com) was recently approved by the FDA for the detection of melanoma skin cancer. The device scans the skin and compares the image to a library of images to determine whether melanoma is likely to be present. If the computer determines that cancer may be present, a biopsy can be taken. The new device has proven to be highly accurate and may prevent unneeded biopsies.

Source
http://www.fda.gov/MedicalDevices/ProductsandMedicalProcedures/DeviceApprovalsa...
Learn More
Learn More